Jailers Get $7,400 From Aged Romeo

Chicago, Aug. 13 — (AP) — Jailers ripped $7,400 out of Sigmond Engel's shorts yesterday but it did not subtract much from the biggest current mystery at the Cook county klink.

Ever since the 73-year-old Lothario was arrested June 25 on charges of swindling widows whose love he courted, jailers have wondered about his apparent bottomless source of ready cash. He seems to be constantly in violation of jail rules in that respect.

A week ago, for instance, jailers said they found $35 in his possession. Jail rules limit prisoners to a maximum of $8. Again last Thursday, John Donnelly, assistant superintendent of the jail, said he found $134.70 in Engel's possession.

Donnelly decided yesterday to have an even more thorough look. He ordered the prisoner stripped and his clothes examined. The steams on Engel's underwear seemed a bit bulky and were ripped open. Out came $4,100 bills.

The jailers were shocked, but not more so than Engel. The jail physician prescribed a sedative and ordered him removed to the hospital.

Donnelly quoted Engel as saying that the money had been in the shorts ever since he was taken to jail. All during his confinement, Engel has been washing his own shorts, Donnelly said.

Engel has been charged in two indictments with operating a confidence game in the alleged swindling of two Chicago widows out of about $20,000 after fast-developing romances.

At the time of his arrest, Engel was quoted by police as saying that he had fleeced women out of millions of dollars over a 50-year period, but stoutly insisted that he had done nothing wrong.

DOROTHY DIX Soured Seventeens

Dear Miss Dix: We are two lively girls who want to get a kick out of life. We have chances to go places and do things, but our parents are very strict and won't let us go to dances or stay out late at any entertainments. We intend to go to a business college in a city and make up for what we have missed, for we will be free. Does it do our parents any good to be strict now, for we will soon be doing as we please in spite of them?

SWEET SEVENTEENS

Answer: No. It doesn't do any good for parents to be too strict nor does it do girls any good to have too much liberty. The pity of the thing is that parents and children find it so hard to strike the happy medium in which youth can have its fling, with age guiding and protecting it.

Both sides are right from their respective points of view. Parents know so well the temptations along the broad highway that their children are so eager to follow. They have seen drunken boys and girls coming home from wild parties late at night. They have heard lurid tales of petting parties and parked automobiles. They have known so many girls' reputations torn to tatters by gossiping tongues that they are determined to keep their own little ewe lambs safe in the home fold.

In reality they have increased the danger that besets every modern girl. For by forbidding pleasure to their daughters and denying them every amusement and association with the opposite sex, they have given a fictitious value to these pleasures and made the girls so avid for them that they will have them at any price.

Parents might just as well face these facts honestly and realize that the only way they can protect their daughters is by letting them have all the innocent pleasures that they can and by teaching them to walk warily among the temptations along their pathway. Let them go to plenty of nice parties where there is a lot of fun and liveliness and they will not be mad for whoopee.

Above all, make their boy friends welcome and get a chance to weed out undesirables thereby helping them to choose for their associates the kind of lads that you would not mind their marrying.

Parents should realize that they cannot always hold their girl children by the hands or keep them locked at home. Very soon these little daughters are grown up and out in the world. If they have always been repressed at home they then break the bounds. They mistake liberty for license. In the exuberance of their spirits, let loose for the first time, they do things that they spend the balance of their lives repenting.

Ignorance is never innocence. Experience does not insure safety. And so the stern parents who try hardest to protect their children do most to throw them to the wolves. For there are many other girls besides these two poor, silly 17-year-olds who are planning to make up for lost time and lost pleasures as soon as they get out from under Father's and mother's thumb.

DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix: I am married, 49 years old, have two children. Have a responsible position and make enough to support my family in comfort and I adore my two children. I am quiet, studious, a keen lover of home life and I love my wife. She is continually on the go. Not home one evening a week, neglects her home. The children I am homesick. Desperately so. So are the children. I am modern enough to appreciate that my wife has an individuality of her own and her own personal tastes. But I would like to have some of the old-time home life. We have begun to quarrel over these matters. I have begun to brood and worry. The atmosphere is one charged with open hostility. For the sake of my children I concentrate my actions and mode of living, but we are getting to the breaking point. What can we do?

E. S. L.

Answer: Of course, you are in the right, but being right doesn't avail much when you have to deal with a pleasure-mad woman who is intent only on the gratification of herself.

The trouble about arguing such a case as yours with a woman and trying to show her how wrong she is in neglecting her duties to her family is that before either party knows it they have lost their tempers and are in a hot fight, which is generally ended by the woman, dissolving in tears and the man putting on his hat and slamming the front door behind him.

So my suggestion to you is that you write out a calm and dispassionate statement of the case to her in a letter and give it to her to be read in quiet. Tell her that you love her, and how lonely you are without her. Then tell her what a wrong she is doing her children.

Quality So fast-acting, pure, dependable. World's largest seller at 10c. St. Joseph ASPIRIN ST. JOSEPH ASPIRIN FOR CHILDREN It's orange-flavored, easy to give right dosage, 50 tablets, 50c.

Then offer her a compromise of two evenings a week out. If she refuses to agree to this, the only thing you can do is to make the best of a bad bargain for the sake of the children. But remember, it is better for the children to have no home at all, or one parent, than it is to have a home of strife and two parents who are always quarreling with each other.

Barkley responded with repeated requests for "Some Enchanted Evening."

Wards Fall Book Shows Price Drops

Price reductions on all but a few lines of merchandise in Wards new fall and Winter General Catalog reflect the declines in commodity prices since last Fall.

Price changes as high as 35 per cent or more on many items.

According to company officials the extent of the price reductions in the new catalog is greater than at any time since 1938. More than half the items listed in the new book are priced below Spring 1949 and very substantially below Fall 1948.

The catalog states that should further price reductions be made, all customers ordering thereafter will be given the benefit of the lower prices.

The new catalog, now being distributed, is a book of 1136 pages, about the same size as the 1948 Fall Catalog. It offers the most complete assortments in several years, especially in lines of merchandise heretofore hard to find.

While space devoted to farm implements, power tools, fishing and camping needs and photographic equipment has been considerably reduced, these lines, greatly expanded, are now offered in special catalogs also at prices often substantially lower than a year ago.

The new Fall styles in women's and misses' coats, suits and dresses, attractively presented in color, are priced from 4 per cent to 39 per cent below Fall 1948 prices for comparable merchandise. Dress shoes show reductions ranging as high as 32 per cent on some popular numbers.

Price cuts are the largest in years with prices in some instances as much as 40 per cent off. Fall Gingham, for example, 38 per cent off; wool plaids down 23 per cent; sheeting, sheets, and pillow cases show big savings; percale sheets 72 by 108 priced 17 per cent below last Fall. Pillow cases 21 by 27 are down 24 per cent; substantial reductions. Big overalls priced 13.5 per cent below a year ago and band overalls down 20 per cent.

Furniture prices range from 10 per cent to 15 per cent below Fall 1948 prices; radio prices down 10 per cent to 20 per cent; diamond rings down 20 per cent; costume jewelry down 30 per cent. Auto batteries reduced 15 per cent to 25 per cent since last Fall; tire prices down 2 per cent to 12 per cent. Building material prices show reductions from last Fall up to 29 per cent; kitchen cabinets cut 21 per cent; shingles down 12 per cent; paint prices down 15 per cent.

Among the new items listed are portable ironers; combination radio-phonographs with 3-speed record changers; wool sweaters that won't shrink; foam rubber mattresses and pillows; a small electric rangette; rubber non-slip backing on all cotton pile scatter rugs; dinnerware in place setting; deferred payment plan to encourage early installation of heating plants — first payment not due until October 1.

They soon were taxiing across the field. This was the part Gaynel liked best, as they gained momentum, the ship seeming to gather all her force beneath her, then that gradual thrilling lift that left the earth dropping away from them.

"Take it," Barry settled back, smiled at her.

"Love it!" Gaynel vowed.

He felt her regard and turned his head. His eyes smiled into hers. His lips said, "I want you to know something, Gaynel. I can't think of anything better than to look at you for the rest of my life. That's what I want. And to shoulder all your burdens for all time. You know that, Gaynel; you've always known it haven't you?"

Her gaze dropped before the look that sprang into his. "Yes, I guess I have, Barry. Though at times I wasn't sure... you seemed to take me so much — for granted."

Steps to the Moon

By Hillman-Curt, Inc. Distributed by NEA SERVICE, INC.

The Story: Gaynel Teare, breadwinner of a once well-to-do family, now reduced to moderate circumstances, has been expected by her family to marry Barry Bainbridge, a young millionaire. But doubts creep into Gaynel's mind when she meets an enterprising young, but poor, paperman, Fritz Freyman. At lunch later, Barry seems worried about her interest in Fritz. He wants to talk privately with Gaynel and takes her to the airport to look over a plane he intends to buy.

On their way to the airport Gaynel did part of her unburdening. She told Barry about Fritz's last visit and how the Little Theatre Movement, and its disciples, had practically taken over the entire house. It wasn't just the extra expenditures, and there were plenty of extras already, in spite of Fritz's declaration that it would not cost one cent. But was having so many people underfoot all the time, and the noise and the fact that the routine of the whole household was upset. There was too much work, as it was, for poor old Kobee.

"If only mother would consent to see, and take a smaller place that we could keep up half decently," she said, though she knew that topic had been covered and argued a hundred times with no results. Mrs. Teare believed she would cease to exist were she forced to give up the big house to which she had come as a bride. Even the suggestion of such a possibility brought on her worse case of nerves.

Barry did not feel that Gaynel's mother should give up her home, either.

He told her not to worry about this latest idea of her mother's. "It'll soon be gone — with the wind," he said. Like Denny, Barry did not take Mrs. Teare's latest fads seriously.

He said he did think Denny should be made to shoulder part of the responsibilities, since Gaynel's shoulders were much too slight and she wouldn't really allow anyone else to take it off her. "Denny's got the stuff," he said. "All he needs is incentive to make him settle down."

He swung the car into the airport.

She smiled up at him, slipping an arm through his as they walked toward the hangar. It did help, for all her indecision, it was nice to have someone like Barry to lean upon.

Gaynel was as eager for a try-out as he. Barry was a splendid pilot. He used the craft for both business and pleasure trips.

"Do you mean to tell me you simply step on her and off she goes?" Gaynel asked. Her face was flushed with eager interest as Barry explained the complicated array of instruments on the dash.

"Why, I could learn to pilot a ship like this!"

Barry said, "That's a deal. I'll teach you this summer. Then you can fly to the moon whenever you like."

They soon were taxiing across the field. This was the part Gaynel liked best, as they gained momentum, the ship seeming to gather all her force beneath her, then that gradual thrilling lift that left the earth dropping away from them.

"Take it," Barry settled back, smiled at her.

Congress Is Compared to the Appendix

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Aug. 15 — (AP) — The appendix in man is looked upon as a nuisance that sometimes gets very stirred up.

But the appendix in the back of the congressional record is where a lot of congressmen get stirred up.

And they don't look on that appendix as a nuisance, although somebody other than a congressman might.

For a congressman the appendix is a good place to let off steam. The record itself, published every day, is the word by word account of everything that happens on the floors of congress.

But the stuff in the appendix is something a congressman wants to get into print and not something he said on the floor.

There he can insert a newspaper editorial that's plugging something he's plugging himself, and he likes the support.

Or, he may stick in a speech by some friend of his. Or, maybe it's a speech the congressman made at a graduation and he likes it so much he wants to embalm it in print.

And when a congressman can't get enough time on the floor to finish the speech, he finishes by getting it in the appendix.

Since the whole record is printed by the government every day congress is in session what gets into the appendix costs the taxpayers money.

A congressman can't just send something down to the printer and get it into the appendix.

First, he has to ask for the unanimous consent of all the congressmen or senators present on the floor.

Unanimous consent is always given, since sooner or later everybody present will want to get something into the appendix himself.

For example, in the most recent record—it came out Saturday and contains Friday's doings — here are a few things.

It opens with a statement by

SO NERVOUS, RESTLESS SEVERAL DAYS BEFORE

Your MONTHLY Period?

Do female functional monthly ailments make you feel so nervous, strangely restless, so tense and weak a few days just before your period? Then start taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms! It has such a soothing, comforting antispasmodic effect on one of woman's most important organs, working through the sympathetic nervous system.

Pinkham's Compound does more than relieve monthly pain. It also relieves pre-period nervous irritability, tense emotions — of this nature. Regular use of this great medicine helps build up resistance against such female distress. Truly the woman's friend!

Senator Humphrey, Minnesota a Democrat, who said: "Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the appendix of the record a commencement address delivered by me at Bennington college, Bennington, Vt., on July 1, 1949."

No explanation was given for why the senator waited so long to get a July 1 speech printed in mid-August.

He may have thought it was quite a piece and ought to be preserved for posterity, or maybe he just remembered it because the senator makes quite a few speeches.

Anyway, there followed four columns on education, democracy, loyalty, and other things.

Then Senator Pepper, Florida Democrat, got a column-and-a-half piece into the appendix.

This was a job by a columnist who recalled what it was like in the depression days under the publicans.

Rep. Boykin, Alabama Democrat, who apparently thinks highly of Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, inserted a two-column editorial which agreed with Boykin that Johnson is a great man.

Followed a blast at the satellite government's "white paper" on China by a congressman who didn't like it; Senator Pepper appeared again with a speech he made on world federation on Aug. 8; another blast at the state department for its policy on China; and so it went, for 34 triple-column pages.

Walcott Points to 4th Crack at Heavy Title

Stockholm, Aug. 15.—(UP)—Walcott today pointed to his 4th crack at the world's heavyweight championship — a crack he may get despite three previous defeats.

The bull-headed father of six children knocked blond Ole Tandberg out of contention when he kayled the bulky Swede in the fifth round of their scheduled 12-round bout here last night before 43,000 at Raasduna stadium.

Thus Walcott, who twice lost to Joe Louis and once to Ezzard
Charles in title bouts, began dreaming of his fourth try for the crown.
He said he will tour Europe in exhibitions for the next few months, hoping he can get a crack at the winner of the Freddie Giles-Pruce Woodcock London bout in October. He hopes to use such a fight as a stepping stone to a second fight against Charles.

Walcott floored Tanderberg twice during last night's bout before the end came in the fifth.
He knocked the big blond with a right for a count of eight in the third round; and he floored him twice in the fifth.

Tam O'Shanter

Playoff Set
for Today

Chicago, Aug. 15.—(AP)—The Tam O'Shanter golf routine got an extra twist today, sending a Johnny Palmer and Jimmy Demarcat, a pair of highpowered champions, into a $17,000 championship playoff.

Seventy-two holes weren't enough to determine a winner of the $35,000 "world" money yesterday. Palmer and Demarcat were charged in among the par-wreckers with 275's — 13 strokes under the par regulation.

Today's 18 hole showdown will pay the winner $10,000. Second place is worth $7,000.

Palmer grooved a pair of 35's yesterday. Demarcat carved 33-34 for his 25's.

Cary Middlecott, with 69, and Toney Penna, with 70, went for 278.
Bob Hamilton's 71 put him in at 279. Buck White, the 54-hole leader with 295, ballooned to a closing 75. Johnny Bulla, Jim Turnesa, and Jim Ferrier trudged in at 292.
